

Our Energy Independence Community

“Reducing America’s Energy Dependence, One Community at a Time.”©

---

Reporters Wanted

Are you involved in your community? Are you interested in energy and environmental subjects? Do you like to write and share with others? If so we are looking for volunteer to report local news and events and would like to talk with you.

Our Energy Independence Community brings together area residents who are concerned about the price and availability of energy with area experts and businesses that can help.

The primary objective of blogging in our Community is to share our experience and expertise with other members on how to reduce their dependence on fossil fuels, eat better and more locally, and generally live better with less energy. Our blogs will take many forms and over time they will provide a rich resource for members today and in the future.

Besides blog-type content we need to share energy and environmental news and events in the Capital Region. And we need to share and comment on news and events of the world that affects us here.

Reporting news can take two forms: writing short (who, what, when, where, why) reports; and, identifying relevant news in other sources (reference the source and comment on why important).

Capturing future events that pertain to energy or environmental issues to our online calendar is also important. Some of these events will become news-worthy and the results can later be reported.

If you are interested in learning more about what is involved and how you can help, email us at Report@OEIC.us